A Collection of obsolete Domestic and Agricultural Appliances.

32/6

6. 401

Warming-pan of copper, with long tubular handle of iron, which serves for blowing into a glow the embers in the pan ; an uncommon type

402

Wooden eggcup (or measure of capacity), turned in beech or mahogany, height in. ; has 2 cups, one at one end for a goose's egg, another at the other end for hen's egg

403

Antique policeman's (or watchman's) alarm rattle, probably of the 18th century

404

Another ditto, similar

405

Spring-gun, in perfect working order, with the (now very rare) iron shield for protecting the mechanism of the lock from rust and dirt ; the trigger (beneath) has 3 rings for the attachment of 3 long wires, intended to be stretched through the wood in 3 directions, to catch the feet of any trespasser and to swing the trap round and fire it in his direction ; the whole mounted on a pivot, set in the top of a pedestal

59-

8. 406

Spring-gun, home-made out of the barrel of a large-bore old-fashioned rifle, fired by a percussion cap, date probably about 1825, mounted on a pivot inserted in the top of a wooden pedestal

29-

7. 407

Early alarm-gun of iron, with screw at side for affixing the whole contrivance to a post or tree ; discharged by a percussion cap mechanism beneath ; date about 1835

29-

7. 408

Early alarm-gun of iron with large screw at side for affixing the whole contrivance to a post or tree-trunk ; discharge by means of a percussion cap ; date probably about 1840

20-

10. 409

Iron horse-muzzle to prevent a vicious animal from biting its driver or from gnawing its manger

24-

40/410

Antique metal double-candle candlestick with shades, about 1850, for office use, as used formerly in banks and other high-class offices

411

Candlestick of wood, with solid square pedestal, upright and extensible (folding) arm, adjustable in height as desired ; all in beechwood

412

Candle-holder of brass, on end of extensible arm of iron, unfolding to a length of about 4ft., the whole affixable to a wall or door-post by means of a screw ; from Yorkshire

14/- 413

Farrier's candlestick, for holding candle while shoeing a horse in a stable, shaft an iron rod (height about 2ft.), with a pedestal made out of an old horse-shoe; from Essex; the whole of iron and probably the work of a local blacksmith

45/- 414

Farrier's candlestick as above (a similar example)

30/- 415

Baker's oven lamp in heavy cast-iron, for placing in old-fashioned brick oven during baking; the heat of the oven melts the fat placed in the lamp to feed the wick; the whole may be moved about the oven, as desired, by means of the baker's "oven-peel," a special kind of shovel used for inserting or moving about the loaves of dough, and for extracting them when baked

10/- 416

Candle-box of thin tinned sheet iron, japanned, for holding old-fashioned tallow candles and preventing mice from getting at and gnawing them; length 17in., diameter 4in.; therein, tallow candles

417

Ditto ditto, length 14in., diameter 4in., therein 14 tallow candles; made in Essex

418

Ditto ditto, length 10in., 4in. diameter, therein tallow candles; made in Essex

419

Geyser for heating water in a bedroom or for shaving, of thin sheet iron, japanned

15/- 420

Rush-holder for holding rush, peeled and drawn through melted tallow, to form a primitive and inexpensive kind of candle; formerly in very general use (see White's Selborne), such rush-lights were to be seen in every kitchen before the introduction of the modern stearine or composite candle; the wooden pedestal of this example is a modern renewal, the original having decayed

10/- 421

Another rush-holder, with spring clip action for holding the rush

422

Ditto

20/- 15/ 423

A ditto, holding the rush, by weight

424

A ditto, ditto

425

A ditto, ditto

426

Old washing-bowl ladle (of willow-wood)

24/- 427

Old wooden ladle or colander, of beechwood

428

Wooden platter (of beech), square, with hollow in one corner for salt or other condiment

429

Old wooden platter (of ash?), round

- 430 Pair of pattens, with an iron ring below each to raise the wearer above the mud and thus keep her feet dry ; such pattens were in common use everywhere throughout the country districts of Essex fifty years ago
- 8/- 15/ 431 Pair of very old well-preserved pattens, with soles of ashwood ; Essex
- 10/- 432 Pair of old pattens bought at Pebmarsh, Essex, out of the unsold stock of a village shop ; ditto
- 2.5/ 433 Candlestick with shade, of thin tinned sheet iron, japanned, of a kind formerly in common use in banks and other offices of good class ; now obsolete
- 30/- 40/ 434 Bedroom candle-shade, of thin sheet iron on tin, japanned, perforated with round holes about the size of a farthing ; formerly in common use ; height $12\frac{1}{2}$ in. with door in side. It is an exceptionally perfect example (a museum piece in fact), with the side door in the tin (which most examples lack), an extinguisher with a long brass handle, having a hook at the top, by means of which it was hung on the upper edge of the cylinder, and a cap-shaped candle-holder of tin, intended to hold water, which served to prevent the smouldering candle-wick setting alight to table or table-cloth as it burned out ; from mid-Essex
- 10/- 435 Another cylindrical candle-shade of thin iron or tin, japanned, for bedroom use ; lacks extinguisher, and separate candle-holder
- 436 Candle-shade of thin sheet iron, japanned, height $12\frac{1}{2}$ in.
- 437 Ditto, ditto, height $12\frac{1}{2}$ in.
- 438 Ditto, ditto, height $11\frac{1}{2}$ in.
- 10/- 30/ 439 Shade of wire gauze for old-fashioned lamp, adjustable to desired height ; the lamp is intended to burn colza oil ; from Essex ; height $8\frac{1}{2}$ in.
- 8/- 2.5/ 440 Spice-box of thin sheet iron, japanned ; compartment for grater in the centre and others for various spices round it ; provided with locking apparatus
- 441 Pair of sugar-breakers of steel and brass ; a very good and strong pair fixed on wooden stand ; used in days when sugar was broken up by each grocer in his own shop ; now quite obsolete
- 442 Pair of steel sugar-breakers, without stand, for domestic use
- 443 Pair of ditto, ditto

- 1/- 444 | Very rude antique pickle-bottle of black glass, height 8in.
 8/- 20/- 445 | Vessel of black glass without bottom, intended to be hung on the face of a wall to afford a nesting-place for tits or other small birds
 446 | Spinning-wheel from Shetland (few small parts missing)
 447 | Pair of antlers of reindeer, Nystuen district (Norway),
 1894 ; a large pair, but very slender
 448 | Plate-stand of iron, height about 14in., for standing on the hearth to warm or keep warm plates or dishes ; handle of wood so as to avoid burning or blacking the hands
 35/- 449 | Ditto, ditto
 450 | Ditto, ditto
 451 | Ditto, ditto
 30/- 452 | Ditto, ditto
 453 | Ditto, ditto
 34/- 454 | Ditto, ditto
 455 | Ditto, ditto
 456 | Iron trivet or kettle-stand with ornamental brass top,
 for standing on the hearth
 457 | Ditto, ditto
 30/- 458 | Shoulder-yoke (length 3ft.) with a chain and hook at each end ; for carrying pails of milk, water, or home-made beer
 459 | Antique stable-lantern of horn
 460 | Large strainer (diameter 30in.) of cane, for straining
hops in home-brewing, with large wooden stirrer
(length 5ft.)
 447A | Round thick door-mat of plaited straw (diameter 24in.,
 thickness 3in.), one of these straw mats lay formerly
 against the back door of every farmhouse and country
 cottage in Essex for labourers and others to wipe their heavy farm boots on ; now practically obsolete
 21/- 20/- 448A | Pair of old wooden butter-scales of beechwood, complete with pedestal and arm and pans (height 22in.) ; the whole in perfect condition
 449A | Another pair of old wooden butter-scales, in ashwood,
 lacking its pans ; Essex
 450A | Another pair of old wooden butter-scales, in ashwood, but lacking pedestal ; perhaps intended to be suspended ;
 Essex

- 10/- 50/- 451A Pair of very early mole-traps, each consisting of a short wooden tube and iron spring with piece of wood which served as trigger
- 21/- 30/- 452A Hay-band twister, old and made wholly of wood (ash and willow), the swivel having the action of that of a flail ; Essex
- 6/- 39/- 453A Hay-band twister, more elaborate modern style, made for sale in shops ; Essex
- 10/- 15/- 454A Thatcher's straw-carrier, for transporting bundles of straw on the shoulder up a ladder whilst at work ; home-made, with wooden spikes to permit of it being stuck into and rested temporarily on the sloping thatch ; Essex
- 20/- 55/- 455A Shepherd's crook, handle of ash, swivel of crab ; Essex
- 29/- 5. R. 456A Steel man-trap, length 50in., arched jaws, with teeth riveted on
- 29/- 75/- 457A Steel man-trap, length 42in., arched jaws, with teeth riveted on
- 29/- 75/- 458A Steel man-trap, length 40in., harmless, late, self-locking type without teeth, 2 keys to open jaws ; bought in Essex
- 459A Old otter or badger trap, length 22in., square jaws and 1 spring only ; Essex
- 460A Cradle scythe, date about 1835, with side-delivery
- 461 Another cradle scythe, similar to above
- 462 Leather "bottle," length 6½in., used formerly in Essex by farm labourers for carrying a day's supply of beer out into the field during hay-time or harvest ; small size
- 463 Wooden "bottle" or small keg from mid-Essex, used for exactly the same purpose as the leather bottle which it succeeded, has the date June 1824 painted on one end ; this example was probably home-made ; length 7½in.
- 464 Ditto, same as above, but undated, length 10in., name of owner or maker and date incised lightly on one end—"G. Roast, 1856," Essex
- 465 Ditto, same as above, but undated ; Sussex
- 466 Ditto, length 10in., same as above, but undated ; Sussex
- 467 Ditto, length 8in., same as above, but undated
- 10/- 50/- 468 Dibber of wood, with iron-shot point, for setting cabbages or potatoes in the field ; probably home-made
- Edwards

16/ 30/40 469 | Shoulder-crook for carrying out into the fields, plaited rush basket containing the day's supply of food and drink ; Essex, home-made

29/ 36/ 470 | Hop-sow (length 76in.), formerly used in the hop-ground at Castle Hedingham, Essex, the last ground to remain under hops in the county ; it ceased to be used about 1887. The implement was so called, no doubt, either because it was used to root up hop-poles like a sow, or because it had teats which gripped ; bought at Castle Hedingham about 1895

1/ 35/ 471 | Bagging-hook, for gathering together grass or grain cut by a sickle, ready for loading on to a cart or wagon for transport to farm-yard or granary. (Note.—It is not a sickle and could not be used as such, as it has no sharp serrated cutting edge.)

4/ 35/ 472 | Another bagging-hook, as above

1/ 18/ 473 | Old " plain " tile (i.e. not a curved " pan " tile), size 10 by 6in. ; from Essex, with the name of the maker and date (Jno. Reed, of Buttsbury, maker, 1789) scratched on it

474 | Another similar old " plain " tile, same size, inscribed with date " May 9, 1789," but no maker's name ; Essex

0/ 40/ 475 | A quern-stone (diameter 9in.) of volcanic stone from the old Roman quarries at Nieder Mendig on the Rhine, which are still worked ; this example shows the central hole into which the grain was fed and the hole near the edge into which the wooden handle for revolving the quern was inserted

8/ 476 | Six portions of similar quern-stones, also from the quarries at Nieder Mendig. (Such fragments may be picked up commonly about the fields in East Anglia, whence they often find their way into rockeries in village gardens ; complete stones are, however, rarely found.)

20/ 477 | Pair of iron " dibs " or dibblers (length about 36in.) for setting potatoes, beans, wheat, barley, etc., before the introduction of the mechanical drill. The sower walked backwards, a dib in each hand, making holes as he retreated, and was followed by a couple of children who dropped one or two seeds into each hole. This example was bought at Sampford, Essex, 1902

- 20/- 25/- 478/ Another pair of iron "dibs" or dibblers; the initials (J.C.) branded on the wooden handles are supposed to be those of James Christy, of Chelmsford, a large farmer; the sharp knife-like flange on the handle is believed to be for cutting a large potato into portions before setting; length 30in. by 36in.
- 20/- 30/- 479/ Another pair of old iron "dibs," from Essex; length 30in. by 36in.
- 16/- 30/- 480/ Another pair of ditto, from Essex, length 30in. by 36in.
- 481/ Large wrought sign-iron of bold design and good workmanship; formerly at the "Half-Moon Inn," in the High Street, at Chelmsford, Essex; 18th century
- 482/ Chimney trammel or pot-hanger, length in.
- 483/ Another trammel or pot-hanger, length in.
- 484/ Another trammel or pot-hanger, length in.
- 486/ Another trammel or pot-hanger, length in.
- 487/ Wrought iron plate-stand, with brass fret top, of uncommon pattern, height in.
- 488/ Large iron fork for taking a joint of beef out of the pot when boiled
- 18/- 50/- 489/ Kettle-tilter, for suspending a kettle whilst being boiled and pouring water from it without touching it and soiling the hand
- 490/ Beer-warmer of copper, funnel-shaped, with hollow iron handle for coolness

A Collection of obsolete Domestic and Agricultural Appliances.

6. 401

Warming-pan of copper, with long tubular handle of iron, which serves for blowing into a glow the embers in the pan ; an uncommon type

402

Wooden eggcup (or measure of capacity), turned in beech or mahogany, height : in. ; has 2 cups, one at one end for a goose's egg, another at the other end for hen's egg

403

Antique policeman's (or watchman's) alarm rattle, probably of the 18th century

404

Another ditto, similar

7. 405

Spring-gun, in perfect working order, with the (now very rare) iron shield for protecting the mechanism of the lock from rust and dirt ; the trigger (beneath) has 3 rings for the attachment of 3 long wires, intended to be stretched through the wood in 3 directions, to catch the feet of any trespasser and to swing the trap round and fire it in his direction ; the whole mounted on a pivot, set in the top of a pedestal

8. 406

Spring-gun, home-made out of the barrel of a large-bore old-fashioned rifle, fired by a percussion cap, date probably about 1825, mounted on a pivot inserted in the top of a wooden pedestal

7. 407

Early alarm-gun of iron, with screw at side for affixing the whole contrivance to a post or tree ; discharged by a percussion cap mechanism beneath ; date about 1835

7. 408

Early alarm-gun of iron with large screw at side for affixing the whole contrivance to a post or tree-trunk ; discharge by means of a percussion cap ; date probably about 1840

60/- 409

Iron horse-muzzle to prevent a vicious animal from biting its driver or from gnawing its manger

410

Antique metal double-candle candlestick with shades, about 1850, for office use, as used formerly in banks and other high-class offices

✓ 411

Candlestick of wood, with solid square pedestal, upright and extensible (folding) arm, adjustable in height as desired ; all in beechwood

412

Candle-holder of brass, on end of extensible arm of iron, unfolding to a length of about 4ft., the whole affixable to a wall or door-post by means of a screw ; from Yorkshire

14/- 75/- 413

Farrier's candlestick, for holding candle while shoeing a horse in a stable, shaft an iron rod (height about 2ft.), with a pedestal made out of an old horse-shoe; from Essex; the whole of iron and probably the work of a local blacksmith

25/- 414

Farrier's candlestick as above (a similar example)

30/- 50/- 415

Baker's oven lamp in heavy cast-iron, for placing in old-fashioned brick oven during baking; the heat of the oven melts the fat placed in the lamp to feed the wick; the whole may be moved about the oven, as desired, by means of the baker's "oven-peel," a special kind of shovel used for inserting or moving about the loaves of dough, and for extracting them when baked

15/- 40/- 416

Candle-box of thin tinned sheet iron, japanned, for holding old-fashioned tallow candles and preventing mice from getting at and gnawing them; length 17in., diameter 4in.; therein, tallow candles

✓ 417

Ditto ditto, length 14in., diameter 4in., therein 14 tallow candles; made in Essex

✓ 418

Ditto ditto, length 10in., 4in. diameter, therein tallow candles; made in Essex

25/- } ✓ 419

Geyser for heating water in a bedroom or for shaving, of thin sheet iron, japanned

15/- 420

Rush-holder for holding rush, peeled and drawn through melted tallow, to form a primitive and inexpensive kind of candle; formerly in very general use (see White's Selborne), such rush-lights were to be seen in every kitchen before the introduction of the modern stearine or composite candle; the wooden pedestal of this example is a modern renewal, the original having decayed

18/- 20/- 421

Another rush-holder, with spring clip action for holding the rush

✓ 422

Ditto

20/- 15/- 423

A ditto, holding the rush, by weight

✓ 424

A ditto, ditto

 hops in home-brewing, with large wooden stirrer
 (length 5ft.)
 447A Round thick door-mat of plaited straw (diameter 24in., thickness 3in.), one of these straw mats lay formerly
 against the back door of every farmhouse and country
 cottage in Essex for labourers and others to wipe their
 heavy farm boots on ; now practically obsolete
 21/- 36/- 448A Pair of old wooden butter-scales of beechwood, complete with pedestal and arm and pans (height 22in.) ; the
 whole in perfect condition
 5/- 449A Another pair of old wooden butter-scales, in ashwood,
 lacking its pans ; Essex
 18/- 39/- 450A Another pair of old wooden butter-scales, in ashwood, but lacking pedestal ; perhaps intended to be suspended ;
 Essex

- (101) 50/- 451A Pair of very early mole-traps, each consisting of a short wooden tube and iron spring with piece of wood which served as trigger
- (111) 30/- 452A Hay-band twister, old and made wholly of wood (ash and willow), the swivel having the action of that of a flail ; Essex
- (4) 35/- 453A Hay-band twister, more elaborate modern style, made for sale in shops ; Essex
- (101) 15/- 454A Thatcher's straw-carrier, for transporting bundles of straw on the shoulder up a ladder whilst at work ; home-made, with wooden spikes to permit of it being stuck into and rested temporarily on the sloping thatch ; Essex
- (21) 35/- 455A Shepherd's crook, handle of ash, swivel of crab ; Essex 16979
- (23) 5/- 456A Steel man-trap, length 50in., arched jaws, with teeth riveted on

- (22) 75/- 458A Steel man-trap, length 40in., harmless, late, self-locking type without teeth, 2 keys to open jaws ; bought in Essex
- ✓ 459A Old otter or badger trap, length 22in., square jaws and 1 spring only ; Essex
- ✓ 460A Cradle scythe, date about 1835, with side-delivery
- ✓ 461 Another cradle scythe, similar to above
- ✓ 462 Leather " bottle," length 6½in., used formerly in Essex by farm labourers for carrying a day's supply of beer out into the field during hay-time or harvest ; small size
- ✓ 463 Wooden " bottle " or small keg from mid-Essex, used for exactly the same purpose as the leather bottle which it succeeded, has the date June 1824 painted on one end ; this example was probably home-made ; length 7½in.
- ✓ 464 Ditto, same as above, but undated, length 10in., name of owner or maker and date incised lightly on one end— " G. Roast, 1856," Essex
- ✓ 465 Ditto, same as above, but undated ; Sussex
- ✓ 466 Ditto, length 10in., same as above, but undated ; Sussex
- ✓ 467 Ditto, length 8in., same as above, but undated
- (101) 50/- 468 Dibber of wood, with iron-shot point, for setting cabbages or potatoes in the field ; probably home-made

469

Shoulder-crook for carrying out into the fields, plaited rush basket containing the day's supply of food and drink ; Essex, home-made

470

Hop-sow (length 76in.), formerly used in the hop-ground at Castle Hedingham, Essex, the last ground to remain under hops in the county ; it ceased to be used about 1887. The implement was so called, no doubt, either because it was used to root up hop-poles like a sow, or because it had teats which gripped ; bought at Castle Hedingham about 1895

471

Bagging-hook, for gathering together grass or grain cut by a sickle, ready for loading on to a cart or wagon for transport to farm-yard or granary. (Note.—It is not a sickle and could not be used as such, as it has no sharp serrated cutting edge.)

472

Another bagging-hook, as above

473

Old "plain" tile (i.e. not a curved "pan" tile), size 10 by 6in. ; from Essex, with the name of the maker and date (Jno. Reed, of Buttsbury, maker, 1789) scratched on it

474

Another similar old "plain" tile, same size, inscribed with date "May 9, 1789," but no maker's name ; Essex

475

A quern-stone (diameter 9in.) of volcanic stone from the old Roman quarries at Nieder Mendig on the Rhine, which are still worked ; this example shows the central hole into which the grain was fed and the hole near the edge into which the wooden handle for revolving the quern was inserted

476

Six portions of similar quern-stones, also from the quarries at Nieder Mendig. (Such fragments may be picked up commonly about the fields in East Anglia, whence they often find their way into rockeries in village gardens ; complete stones are, however, rarely found.)

477

Pair of iron "dibs" or dibblers (length about 36in.) for setting potatoes, beans, wheat, barley, etc., before the introduction of the mechanical drill. The sower walked backwards, a dib in each hand, making holes as he retreated, and was followed by a couple of children who dropped one or two seeds into each hole. This example was bought at Sampford, Essex, 1902
